MIDNIGHT SUN SPORTS

Summer solstice (the longest day of the year on June 21) brings with it a host of events and activities fueled by the midnight sun.

More than just a running race, the Fairbanks Daily News-Miner Midnight Sun Run is a uniquely Alaskan event that has attracted participants from all over the world for over 20 years. Despite its late evening start at 10 p.m., there's no need to bring flashlights or wear headlamps, as the summer sun shines brightly overhead. In recent years, the race has attracted over 3,000 participants, from the elite runners who are aiming to set a record or personal best, to back-of-the-pack strollers simply out to visit and enjoy themselves.

The Alaska Goldpanners, the farthest north baseball club, begins this widely acclaimed contest at 10:30 p.m. each summer solstice at Growden Park. Never once have artificial lights been used nor has the "high noon at midnight" classic ever been postponed or delayed because of darkness. As always, play is stopped at the half-inning nearest midnight for the traditional singing by the crowd of the Alaska Flag Song.

With Fairbanks a mere 200 miles south of the Arctic Circle, the sun is just beginning to set to the north as the game gets underway and, at its conclusion some three hours later, the sun begins to rise again - also to the north.
